

Why Mabruenia has the best claim to the Scottish throne. (Micronationally)

I will start this with saying that I am quite aware that currently, Scotland exists as a country within the United Kingdom. Our claim goes off the fact that a truly independent Scotland has not existed since at least 1603-1707.

My claim starts from me being related to Clan Fleming. The only issue is, I was already told by my father, who confirmed the relationship, that I pretty much cannot prove this. While this may sound like I am making up an excuse, this is the same reason there is no current chief to the clan. You need to have connections and be accepted by the clan.

My claim for the Scottish throne comes from the marriage of Malcolm Fleming, 3rd Lord Fleming to Lady Janet Stewart, the daughter of James IV of Scotland. While she was considered an illegitimate daughter as a result of being a birth outside of marriage to a royal mistress and not the Queen, many of James IV's children were born this way, and as such, she still was his daughter.
